Grand Opening of the new Lennox Library and Constituent Service Center

What: Grand Opening celebration of the new Lennox Library and Constituent Service Center

When: 3:30 p.m. Friday, April 11

Who: Supervisor Mark Ridley-Thomas
Los Angeles County Librarian Margaret Todd

Where: Lennox Library and Constituent Service Center
4359 Lennox Blvd.
Lennox, CA 90304

Background:

Originally built in 1949, the 4,600-square-foot Lennox Library was the oldest and most outdated library within the County's Public Library system. The beautifully renovated library is now 10,000-square-feet, more than double its original size and includes a children's section, a teen study room, an adult reading area, nine new public access computers and a community meeting room with seating for 75 people.

The Community Service Center will include meeting rooms, a Second District field office as well as offices for the Departments of Regional Planning, Consumer Affairs and Community and Senior Services.

This renovation is the latest project in Supervisor Mark Ridley-Thomas's longstanding effort to fuel community engagement by providing attractive and useful public spaces for constituents. Other service centers are in Exposition Park and Florence Firestone. For more information, go to
